

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

The invention includes methods of forming capacitor structures and removing organic material. An organic material, such as a photoresist, is disposed on a substrate. The organic material is contacted with a chemical mechanical polishing pad and a polishing fluid to remove the organic material from the substrate. The polishing fluid can be essentially free of particles, and can be water.